

Taste THESE Wines with NYT Eric Asimov, Cheers!

by Tanji on February 23, 2017 and posted in Austin, Eric Asimov, Houston, San Antonio, Weekly Gems, Wine Critics, Wine Travels, Wines

Most intrepid wine enthusiasts have at least one wine hero, someone they are inspired by, learn from. Eric Asimov, the wine critic for the New York Times, is one of mine. I've had the extreme pleasure of interviewing Eric a couple of times now, most recently at the scenic Lake Austin Spa. If you read his work, you know he is truly a gifted, expressive writer.

In this meet up, we discussed getting out of our comfort zones when it comes to drinking wine. The topic was inspired by a fantastic, charming restaurant in Houston called Helen Greek Food & Wine. This mecca for Mediterranean food features the second largest Greek wine list in the country—more than 250 wines!