

Four Greek Wines that Will Take You Places

Though far from sun-soaked Santorini, ancient vineyards and tavernas with tables of grilled fish, you can still experience Greece at home through its wines.

The A-to-Zs of Greece and its Wine

Domaine Gerovassiliou 2015 Single Vineyard Malagousia (Epanomi); $23, 92 points.

Luscious peach and lychee aromas start this distinctive white from northern Greece, made from a variety that was almost extinct in the country until its revival in the late 20th century. The medium-weight, rounded mouthfeel offers flavors of honey, melon and tropical fruit balanced by minerality and a dry finish. For fans of Riesling, this is an exciting and exotic alternative.
